

DIGGING UP JUSTICE: WHEN MINING REACHES THE UNIVERSITY

Workshop Discussion

Canadian mining companies are funding university research, despite accusations of human rights violations and environmental degradation across Latin America. We are inviting graduate students, activists, scholars, and the general public to a workshop-discussion on corporate involvement with university research. The event will provide a platform to learn more and contribute to critical conversation on an issue that involves us all in unexpected ways.

About us:

We are a group of scholars and activists concerned about environmental and health impacts of large-scale extractivism. We are affiliated with universities in Canada, Bolivia, Ecuador, and Colombia.

Sponsored by Antipode Foundation

FOOD AND REFRESHMENTS PROVIDED
Beit Zatoun
612 Markham St.

MARCH 10, 2016
6:00 – 9:00 PM